Nothing is more treasured in Judaism than the Jewish text. Our tradition's great books have had enduring impact through millennia on Jewish minds, hearts and souls and, indeed, on the course of global history. This year's Lucy S. Dawidowicz Lecture, with Dr. Joshua Teplitsky, will illuminate the fascinating trajectory of this abiding phenomenon.

Professor Teplitsky's lecture will focus on a key figure who helped bridge the medieval and modern periods of Jewish history. David Oppenheim (1664–1736), chief rabbi of Prague in the early eighteenth century, built an unparalleled collection of Jewish books and manuscripts, all of which have survived and are housed in the Bodleian Library at Oxford. His remarkable collection testifies to the myriad connections Jews maintained with each other across political borders, and the contacts between Christians and Jews that books facilitated.

From contact with the great courts of European nobility to the poor of Jerusalem, Oppenheim's family ties brought him into networks of power, prestige, and opportunity that extended across Europe and the Mediterranean basin. Containing works of law and literature alongside prayer and poetry, his library served rabbinic scholars and communal leaders, introduced old books to new readers, and functioned as a unique source of personal authority that gained him fame throughout Jewish society and beyond. The story of his life and library brings together culture, commerce, and politics, all filtered through this extraordinary collection.

Our annual Lucy S. Dawidowicz Lecture is named in honor, and dedicated to the memory, of the preeminent Holocaust historian and Or Zarua congregant. Dr. Teplitsky is the most recent in a long series of distinguished scholars for this annual event. He is an associate professor in the Department of History at Stony Brook University (SUNY), where he researches and teaches about Jewish life in Central Europe in the early modern period. He has held fellowships at the University of Oxford, the National Library of Israel, the University of Pennsylvania, and Harvard University. His book, Prince of the Press:

How One Collector Built History's Most Enduring and Remarkable Jewish Library, was published by Yale University Press in 2019 and named the winner of the Salo Baron Prize of the American Academy for Jewish Research for best first book in Jewish Studies in 2019 and the 2020 Jordan Schnitzer Book Award of the Association for Jewish Studies, and was a finalist for the National Jewish Book Award. Dr. Teplitsky is currently at work on a book reconstructing a plague epidemic in eighteenth-century Prague and its impact on Jewish social and cultural life in the city.

Professor Teplitsky is also the Project Co-Director of Footprints: Jewish Books Through Time and Place, a database tracking the circulation of printed Jewish books. Abundant but scattered pieces of information about the movement of early printed books can be connected to compile a composite view of the movement of Jewish texts and ideas across geography and history. This ambitious scholarly project aims at adding to our knowledge of the role of books and reading in the history of Jewish culture.

Please join us—either in person at Or Zarua or on Zoom—for what will be an insightful exploration of the role of Jewish books in the preservation and development of Jewish values and identities through continents and centuries.

President's Message

by Isaac Nagiel

Rabbis are often described in many ways including as teachers, spiritual leaders, arbiters of Jewish law, and purveyors of wisdom. Advocates of trendy health routines? Not typically... However, Rabbis are perhaps thousands of years early in popularizing one of the latest health crazes, intermittent fasting.

There is a growing body of research about the health benefits of intermittent fasting, which is an eating pattern that includes hours or days of no or minimal food consumption. The three most widely studied intermittent fasting regimens are alternate day fasting, 5:2 intermittent fasting (fasting 2 days each week), and daily time-restricted feeding (e.g. eating only during a six hour period each day). A recent review of the research on the topic sponsored by the National Institute on Aging and published in the New England Journal of Medicine concluded that "intermittent fasting has broad-spectrum benefits for many health conditions, such as obesity, diabetes, cardiovascular disease, cancers, and neurological disorders."

We have six communal fast days each year on our calendar. Of these six fasts, only Yom Kippur has origins in the Torah. Four others were established in the era of the Prophets, after the destruction of the First Temple: the Fast of Gedaliah, the Tenth of Tevet, The Seventeenth of Tammuz, and Tisha B'Av. The sixth fast was established by Esther and Mordechai; we read about it in the Megillah at Purim. Our Sages ordained that we should continue all six of these fasts to unify around our history and reflect on what lessons could be learned from history. What gets even more interesting about Rabbinic ritual-making and the laws of fasting is the lesser known ancient Ashkenazi custom of the Fast of Behab (the three Hebrew letters Bet, Hey, Bet), which represents Monday, Thursday, Monday. The ancient custom was to fast on the first Monday, first Thursday, and second Monday in the months of Cheshvan and Iyar, shortly following the Sukkot and Passover holidays to atone for any inadvertent sin which may have been committed during the merriment and feasting of the holidays. Coincidentally or not, the Fast of Behab follows the 5:2 intermittent fasting regimen often used in research studies. So, beyond the spiritual cleansing that we often associate with these fasts, the rabbis may have been way ahead of their time in understanding the physical benefits as well.

As we bring in 2022 and many of us make our resolutions, we can thank the wisdom of the Rabbis for jump starting us on the latest health/dieting craze.

God's Optimism, Bar Mitzvah Dreams & Two Worlds Exist Poetry Reading To Warm The Heart And Soul with Yehoshua and Baruch November Saturday Evening, January 22, 7:30pm

As winter rolls in, let's join together and give ear to two brothers' award-winning poetry. We'll gather at Or Zarua on Saturday evening, January 22, 7:30pm, to make havdalah and then hear the words of two poets. Come raise a glass and revel in a reading that will feature Yehoshua and Baruch November.

Yehoshua

Yehoshua November embraces a religious faith that can be compatible with a poetry of deep feelings of religious doubt and uncertainty as real options: "A Jew is supposed to trust in God, but this too comes against the backdrop, against the possibility of doing otherwise. This is what makes faith meaningful...If a religious poet is honest...he or she can represent the challenges and humanity of religious life."

Baruch November is the author of Bar Mitzvah Dreams and Dry Nectars of Plenty (co-winner of the BigCityLit Chapbook Contest). His poems and short fiction have been featured in Paterson Literary Review, Lumina, New Myths, The Forward, and Jewish Journal. For nearly two decades, Baruch has taught courses in Shakespeare, poetry, and writing at Touro College in Manhattan. His poem "After Esav" was nominated for a 2021 Pushcart Prize.

Yehoshua November is the author of two poetry collections, God's Optimism (a finalist for the Los Angeles Times Book Prize) and Two Worlds Exist (a finalist for the National Jewish Book Award and the Paterson Poetry Prize). His work has been featured in The New York Times Magazine, Harvard Divinity Bulletin, The Sun, Virginia Quarterly Review, on National Public Radio and On Being's Poetry Unbound podcast.

Let the Earth Sprout Vegetation: Illuminating the Account of Creation (Ma'aseh Breshit) in Hebrew Manuscripts from Ashkenaz with Sara Offenberg, PhD

Monday Morning, January 17, 9:00 am via Zoom

Zoom ID: 818 0400 4137; Passcode: 613

Creation is one of the principal scenes portrayed in illuminated Bibles from the thirteenth century onward.

Hebrew illuminated manuscripts reflect an iconographical relationship to the images in Christian art as well as to a Jewish exegetical understanding of the biblical text. I wish to point at a phenomenon that while the visualization of Creation in Ashkenazi manuscripts is missing, the notion of 'Ma'aseh Breshit', the account of Creation, and 'Ma'aseh ha-Mishkan', the account of the Tabernacle as well as the Temple is taking place, be it as a replacement or as a choice to enhance this notion. In this lecture,

I examine Creation scenes in light of Jewish-Christian medieval relations in Ashkenaz (the German lands and France), against a background of contemporary textual and artistic evidence.

Please use the ZOOM link (above) to join the learning. We thank Professor Offenberg for generously contributing to the learning of our congregation and helping us celebrate Tu B'Shvat in this wonderful, scholarly way.

Dr. Offenberg is an associate professor in the Department of the Arts and Managing Editor, Mabatim: Journal of Visual Culture Ben Gurion University of the Negev. She holds an interdisciplinary Ph.D. with Summa cum laude from the Department of Jewish Thought and the Department of the Arts at Ben-Gurion University of the Negev. She published in books of collected articles and several Journals. Her major publications include two books: Illuminated Piety: Pietistic Texts and Images in the North French Hebrew Miscellany, Los Angeles 2013; Up in Arms: Images of Knights and the Divine Chariot in Esoteric Ashkenazi Manuscripts of the Middle Ages, Los Angeles 2019. Between 2014-2017 she was co-editor of the journal Ars Judaica:

The Bar-Ilan Journal of Jewish Art. Since 2021 she is managing editor of Mabatim: Journal of Visual Culture. Her research focuses on Chivalry and warriors in Hebrew manuscripts; German Pietists; Hebrew illuminated prayer books; Jewish-Christian relations in medieval art and literature.

classical sources that Rabbi Sacks raises to build his unique and poignant messages. Through his books, recorded lectures, and syndicated columns, Rabbi Sacks, z"l, shared his exquisite understanding of Torah for the modern world as the Chief Rabbi of the United Hebrew Congregations of the Commonwealth (UK). After stepping down as Chief Rabbi he served as Ingeborg and Ira Rennert Global Distinguished Professor of Judaic Thought at NYU. His recent death in November, 2020, caused many to reflect on his profound impact in America, in the UK and globally. Come study Torah as an expression of how much we value learning and to honor Rabbi Sacks' memory.

The chapters of Tractate Makkot deal with laws of the Jewish beit din and the punishments they may administer. The Talmudic discourse moves us into concerns about false witnesses and laws about manslaughter versus murder. Amid passages about offenses and their consequences we find theological and sociological reflections about crime, criminals and criminality. As policy for Jewish courts is derived, our Sages discuss the place of retribution, rehabilitation and restorative justice. Which offenses are minor breaches? Which more serious infractions? And do more lashes mean more expiation of guilt? Does receiving lashes somehow reverse the severe punishment of excommunication? While the Torah outlawed self-flagellation, Hanina ben Gamliel said, "If by the commission of a sin one forfeits his soul before God, so much the more reason is there for belief that, by a meritorious deed, such as voluntary submission to punishment, his soul is saved." The possibilities that Talmudic literature raises sometimes lead to particular laws and other times stand as thought exercises to explore important concepts or concerns. Makkot is about crime and punishment, and Makkot is about human nature, sin and pursuing justice.

Candlelighting, Kabbalat Shabbat, Lekha Dodi and Ma'ariv (The Evening Service), Shalom Aleichem...Did we always say the unique psalms that make up the preliminary service on Friday night? Sing for our Sabbath meal? Which prayers were central to our ancestors' experiences of Shabbat? How did poetry woven together from biblical allusions and medieval mystical texts become central to Jewish worship throughout both Ashkenaz and Sephardic lands? How do modern prayerbooks compare to siddurim from ages past, when it comes to Sabbath evening services and table liturgy for Shabbat dinners? Come explore the history of Shabbat over the Jewish ages and the liturgies that were recited, in addition to those we use today. During Siddur Class we explore the prayers' language, discuss their meanings and dig into their histories. Our conversations this year will surely take us into exploring the meaning of Shabbat in our lives and what the liturgy suggests as points of focus. Class meets at 8:40 am on Thursday mornings. ZOOM participants are encouraged to have their cameras on, to add their presence on screen to the learning community.

Online OZ Gallery for January and February Remembering Naomi Friedland-Wechsler Through Reflections on Chagall's Stained-Glass Windows in Jerusalem

We dedicate this special edition of the OZ Online Gallery to the memory of Naomi Friedland-Wechsler, beloved wife of Rabbi Emeritus Dr. Harlan J. Wechsler, loving Ima to her son, Rabbi Ezra Amichai and his wife, Malka Chana Amichai, and daughter Chana Leah Dror; and cherished Savta to five grandchildren. A graduate of Radcliffe College and Columbia Law School, Naomi practiced financial services law and later became an advisor and appraiser of fine and decorative arts. Her love of the arts and of Jewish learning, community and continuity were integral parts of her personal and professional life.

Naomi Friedland-Wechsler died in Jerusalem on December 18, 2021. In his eulogy, Rabbi Ezra (who has given us permission to share these words with you) noted that while his mother was in Hadassah hospital, the family spent Shabbat praying close by.

He wrote: "At the center of this main shul in Hadassah Ein-Kerem are the 12 stunning Marc Chagall stained-glass windows. Each one depicts a bracha that Yaakov Avinu shared with his children right before his death.... My Ima, of course, studied and appreciated art in a profound way, and I often felt like the Metropolitan Museum of Art was just another room in our house, but these stained glass windows were something different. This was art at its highest level, being used as an inspiration for the experience of prayer."

Each stained-glass window depicts what many consider to be a set of heraldic symbols for each of the first Twelve Tribes of Israel. According to an ancient Kabbalistic belief, the prayers of Israel reach God through these 12 gates of heaven; those who worship in the Hadassah synagogue in Jerusalem hope that these stained-glass windows will be the entryway through which their prayers will have direct access to heaven. Each pane represents Chagall's vision of the world, both real and fantastic, as well as his love for the people of Jerusalem and his profound sense of identification with the history, culture and continuity of the Jewish people. On the occasion of the windows' installation in 1962, Chagall described them as his "modest gift to the Jewish people." A gift of enduring beauty and spiritual meaning.

It was there in Jerusalem, on Shabbat Vayechi, the parsha in which the life of Jacob ends, that Naomi Friedland-Wechsler left this world. May her memory forever be for a blessing and for an inspiration.

Thursday Night Pasta and Salad at the Neighborhood Coalition for Shelter

OZ Congregants package food at the Neighborhood Coalition for Shelter’s East 81st Street Residence from 5:00 to 5:45 pm on the third and fourth Thursdays of each month. Donations to the Hesed Fund are also needed. To volunteer when NCS is able to resume our usual practice of serving food to the residents please contact Jeff Haberman at jeff32449@verizon.net.

Helping Or Zarua

Or Zarua is a vibrant community, and all communities need their members. Here are some quick and easy ways to help:

Choose to pay via ACH when paying online. This is a direct debit from your checking account. It saves the congregation credit card transaction fees.

Still want to pay via credit card? Choose to include the transaction fee in your payment. This ensures that the entire payment comes to OZ.

Start your shopping at Amazon Smile! Go to smile.amazon.com when you shop on Amazon and choose Or Zarua as your beneficiary. Then shop as usual. OZ earns a percentage of every eligible purchase.

Sponsor a lecture, Shabbat Zoom, or other program. Our online programming has been varied and well attended. This will defray the costs to the congregation of having these wonderful events. Please contact Helene Santo for more information.

Congratulations to OZ Congregant Johanna Kaplan whose book, Loss of Memory Is Only Temporary, is a Vogue Best Book of 2022.

LIONESS: Golda Meir and the Nation of Israel

The Book LIONESS, Golda Meir and the Nation of Israel by OZ Congregant Francine Klagsbrun is being made into a mini series.

The series will star Shira Hass. Barbara Streisand and Eric Tuchman are the executive producers.

You can read more about this event here:

Additional information will be published in future issues of the OZ newsletter.
