President's Message

by Diane Okrent

A I sh'losa devarim ha'olam omeid: Al ha'Torah, v'al ha-avodah v'al gemilut hasadim. The world stands on three things:

on the Torah, on divine service, and on deeds of loving-kindness.

These words from Pirke Avot (Chapter I, 2) reflect the founding principles of Congregation Or Zarua. And we bring these to life each and every day in our community.

Torah is central to our Congregation. We study the Torah reading each Shabbat and holiday—the central element of our services—and we read the full parasha together, split among volunteers.

Torah also refers to learning. We at Or Zarua pride ourselves in being a learning community—dedicated to learning for children and adults. From the very beginning, Or Zarua had a weekly Talmud Class. Early on, we offered classes in Hebrew reading, Torah and Haftarah, as well as a class on the oral law between Pesah and Shavuot. These classes have continued. And right at the beginning of his tenure, Rabbi Bolton initiated a new class in Siddur.

Or Zarua was the first congregation in New York to host Me'ah (now Context) courses for adults. This fall, we will initiate a new form of Context class. Stay tuned for details. A new, two-year Context class will be hosted at our synagogue, in addition to the new endeavor that will bring top scholars to our shul.

Since Pesah, many of us have taken advantage of the opportunity to study Pirke Avot with rabbis from neighboring congregations. Bringing the Jewish community together in unity through Torah learning, Rabbi Bolton, with rabbis from five other synagogues, formed the East Side Torah Learning Coalition (TLC). The initial offerings of the TLC have been classes on Pirke Avot, traditionally studied between Pesah and Shavuot. I have always wanted to study that section of the Mishnah, and this was my golden opportunity. Now I know the source of Or Zarua's founding principles!

Or Zarua has been and remains dedicated to our children's learning. Our Hebrew School has been a constant—almost from the beginning of the Congregation. We continue to offer a quality after-school curriculum that has produced some of our best Torah readers. We now offer programs for children from toddlers to teens.

Shavuot is almost upon us. In addition to commemorating the time when the first fruits were harvested and brought to the Temple (Hag ha-Bikkurim—the Festival of the First Fruits), Shavuot celebrates the giving of the Torah at Mount Sinai (Hag Matan Torateinu—the Festival of the Giving of Our Torah). We celebrate this holiday with a rededication to learning.

Or Zarua's second founding principle is avodah, translated as divine service or service to God. Our prayer services are central to our existence. We come together each morning for spiritual awakening and to support our members who are saying kaddish. And we come together on Shabbat and holidays to pray to God together. But avodah also means work. We learn in Pirke Avot (Chapter II, 2) that one must work for a living: Rabban Gamliel, son of Rabbi Yehudah Ha-Nassi taught: "The study of Torah is commendable when combined with a gainful occupation, for when a person toils in both, sin is driven out of mind."

The third principle, gemilut hasadim—that the world is sustained through acts of loving-kindness—is also practiced well

Celebrate Israel Parade: Whom Will You Meet?

ALIZA KAPLAN

at Or Zarua. We continue to feed the former homeless in our community, donate clothing to the less fortunate, collect money for the hungry in our own community and in Israel, and provide comfort to our members who are ill or in mourning.

Recently, in his class, "A Tree of Life for Those Who Grasp It: Torah Study for its Own Sake," Marc Ashley posed the question, "Is it better to spend an hour studying Torah or doing a mitzvah?" My answer referred back to Al sh'losha devarim ha'olam omeid—The world is built on three things, not just one. Another class member likened the principle to a three-legged stool. It cannot stand without all three legs.

The success of our Congregation in fulfilling these three principles depends heavily on our volunteers and the generosity of members to support the essence of who we are through tzedakah. There are so many ways to be involved at Or Zarua, and the more you are involved, the closer you will feel to the community. So I urge you to look to Shavuot to rededicate yourself to Or Zarua's founding principles as exemplified in our tagline, "Learn, Pray, Participate and Connect."

Participate in the 2013 Celebrate Israel Parade with other Or Zarua Congregants, and you will meet people from a variety of schools, shuls, organizations, and businesses. You may even meet a camel or two. In celebration of Israel's 65th year of independence, the parade's theme is "Picture Israel: The Art & The Craft." The parade will spotlight the diversity of Israel's people, land, cities, seascapes, culture, schools, businesses, and accomplishments. For those wishing to march with Or Zarua, assembly location and step-off time will be announced in email blasts and during services. For those who wish to watch the parade from the sidelines, the parade will be held along Fifth Avenue, from 57th Street to 74th Street, beginning at 11:00 a.m.

WELCOMING GUESTS AT CONGREGATION OR ZARUA

As a community, it is important for us to make guests and new members at our services and kiddushim feel comfortable and welcome. If you are seated next to someone whom you do not know or see a new face at kiddush, please reach out and introduce yourself. Making this effort is consistent with our culture and will repay dividends.

Should We Blow the Shofar on Shavuot?

Why do we only hear it during Elul and Rosh Hashanah?

On Shavuot, as study takes center stage, we will have a panel presentation, “Free for All or Stopped by the Law? Intellectual Property and Copyright Law in a Digital Age.” Creativity is a gift granted by God to humanity; law in general helps us regulate our society and reflects our will, as it does God’s will, according to our tradition.

The Jewish custom of study is strong on Shavuot; some stay up all night studying in order to connect with the idea that we are preparing to receive Torah all over again at Mount Sinai. Regarding that experience of Sinai, we have a tradition that we were all there. Simultaneously, as with Passover, we use our religious imaginations to receive Torah again every year.

I have always been somewhat surprised that we do not include the sounding of the shofar at our Shavuot services. According to the Torah, when we were at Mount Sinai during the giving of the Torah, the shofar’s sound was very loud, and it grew louder and was “long.” Part of the encounter with the Divine was the piercing sound of the horn.

As it is written: “And it happened on the third day in the morning, there was thundering and lightning and a heavy cloud upon the mountain, and the sound of a shofar was very loud, and the whole nation in the camp trembled...and the sound of the shofar grew louder and louder.”

God said, “When the shofar sounds long, they shall ascend the mountain.”

What is this “long” sounding? Is it the tekiah g’dolah of the High Holidays? Is it some other type of blast that needed its own set of notes for the Shavuot holiday, instead of any of those with which we are familiar from the Yamim Noraim (High Holidays)?

Following the text, while receiving the Torah, the Jewish people were trembling; fear and awe filled their hearts. Commentators, including Saadia Gaon and the Rambam, interpret the sounding of the shofar in a loud and long way as indicating that Moses would choose a time to sound the shofar with notes that indicated it was safe to go up the mountain. The Jewish people would know that it was permissible to ascend Mount Sinai and that they did not have anything more to fear. The shofar’s call was the invitation to theophany—the encounter with the Divine—and a release from existential danger.

While I can imagine our sages creating the type of blast on a shofar that would echo the Sinaitic shofar call, and perhaps could see how we would use the sacred horn to thrust ourselves into a revelation experience, a reliving of the giving of the Torah, we are not required or invited to utilize the shofar on the holiday of Shavuot. There were not three types of sounds ordained to mirror the three days of preparation around the mountain; nor was there a long and loud blast to return us to our ancestors’ moments of release from fear and trembling and anticipation of encounter with the Divine.

Yet the silence of the shofar on this upcoming holiday of Shavuot rings true and speaks volumes. Once, our ancestors had the encounter that we relive in our religious imaginations. Our engagement is with the text of Torah itself, and as Franz Rosenzweig described it, we bring life to the Torah and Torah to life. This is the act of reflecting upon our lives through the filters of Torah and Talmud. This is why it remains an imperative to study our sources as they relate to worldly matters and for their own sake.

Whether it is through discussion at our weekly services or in a class or outing through the synagogue, I invite you to join even if you have no background, have been to none of the other classes or generally do not have the time. As our sources (those we have been learning about in the multid denominational Torah Learning Coalition) tell us, in Pirke Avot it says: “Make time for study!” It refreshes the soul, pushes the restart button, and informs our lives so that we experience more of the divine possibilities before us.

As the summer draws near, let me invite you to the special summer study class, “Jerusalem in the Sources: Talmud and Midrash on the Holy City,” Wednesday nights, 7:30 p.m.–9:00 p.m., on July 24 and 31, and August 7, 14, and 21.

I hope to see you at the Annual Meeting and look forward to sharing more in person; if we have not yet had a chance to meet, I invite you to make an appointment with Deborah in the office or contact me directly at rabbibolton@orzarua.org so we can get to know one another at my office, at your home, or on a walk through the park or a museum you love. It would be my honor.

LIFE EVENTS AT OR ZARUA

A community such as ours shares good times and bad with its members. When something good happens in your family—birth, graduation, engagement, or marriage—let us share your joy. When something bad happens—illness, hospitalization, or a death in your family—let us share your burden.

Sometimes people are reluctant to communicate these issues on their own. If you know of a member who is coping with illness or loss, please contact the OZ office at 212-452-2310, extension 12 or 14, so that Rabbi Bolton can be informed.

EDITOR’S NOTE

Do you have an idea or article that is suitable for publication in the OZ Newsletter? If so, please contact Charlie Spielholz at cssrs@earthlink.net. All copy for the July/August 2013 issue should be received by Monday, June 3.

"The Art and Illumination of Pirke Avot"

Siyyum with Artist Mordechai Rosenstein, Thursday, May 30, 7:00 p.m., Sutton Place Synagogue

Siyyum means celebrating learning success! On May 30, the East Side Torah Learning Coalition (TLC) invites everyone to a special engagement with renowned artist Mordechai Rosenstein, who will present "The Art and Illumination of Pirke Avot."

Each of the first four sessions held by the East Side Torah Learning Coalition has drawn more than 120 learners! The kickoff at Congregation Or Zarua packed our house, and subsequent presentations drew members of the six participating Orthodox, Conservative, and Reform congregations to similar experiences at area shuls. This groundbreaking, multid denominational approach to organizing Jewish learning has created new opportunities for members of the Jewish community to get to know one another and take pride in their own and our area's thriving synagogue communities.

Following the six weeks of classes about each chapter of Pirke Avot, the TLC invites everyone to come to a special class that will bridge art and Jewish text. World-renowned artist Mordechai Rosenstein (www.emeseditions.com) will give a lecture and present the art he has created that is based on Pirke Avot texts from a variety of chapters. Attendees will be able to view those works, as well as other works by this great artist, whose erudition about text, creativity, and Jewish art will make for a wonderful learning experience. The event will be held at Sutton Place Synagogue, 225 East 51st Street, on Thursday, May 30, at 7:00 p.m.

Earlier Rather Than Later

This year, the High Holy Days are definitely earlier

Although Rosh Hashanah arrives each year on the first of Tishri, there is a long-standing tradition to discuss whether the High Holy Days are “early” or “late.” This year there is no question—they are early. Erev Rosh Hashanah 5774 coincides with Wednesday, September 4, which is two days after Labor Day.

With that date in mind, please note that membership renewal notices will be mailed during the week of June 17 and will include the form for purchase of guest tickets. Tickets for all members in good standing will be mailed on Monday, August 12. The smooth process of preparing and mailing the tickets is dependent upon the timely receipt of membership payment.

Please direct any questions about membership dues to the Or Zarua office, 212-452-2310, extension 10. We look forward to welcoming 5774 together.

HELP THE FORGOTTEN ETHIOPIANS OF ISRAEL! Please Contribute to an Or Zarua Congregant's Anonymous $5,000 Matching Grant Challenge

There remain many poor Ethiopian olim (immigrant) families living in the city of Netanya in Israel who continue to struggle to survive. The Forgotten People Fund (FPF) was set up in 1998 as an emergency fund to help Ethiopian families who had no place else to turn. Led by volunteers, FPF has provided for untold numbers of Ethiopian olim over the last decade in cooperation with local social services. They are efficient, compassionate and work with an overhead of only 1.5%.

Thanks to the extraordinary generosity of an anonymous congregant, Congregation Or Zarua has received a challenge grant of $5,000 to support the FPF and help respond to hunger, poverty and educational needs in the Netanya Ethiopian community. Please make a donation to the Hesed Fund to help generate this generous match specifying “The Forgotten Fund”. Every donation helps!

Happiness Flowed on Tu B'Shevat Night at Ronald McDonald House

OZ brought a respite to young children and their families

For an audience of smiling, laughing children, Or Zarua hosted the 11th annual Israeli Night at the Ronald McDonald House on Monday, February 18. In the second-floor dining room at the Ronald McDonald House on East 73rd Street, OZ volunteers joined Danny Pollack, the talented Israeli folk dancer, entertainer, and teacher, as he presented the magic of Tu B'Shevat and the land of Israel by leading the children and their families in frolicking, dancing, and singing.

A catered kosher meal of Israeli specialties was served, along with a wide selection of desserts, some made by or brought by OZ volunteers. A very special thanks to Zaro's Bakery for cupcakes and Gertel's for assorted cookies donated to the event. Once again, Fairway generously provided drinks. We were also fortunate this year to have musical instruments donated by Mary Arnold Toys, a local toy shop located on Lexington Avenue and East 72nd Street. Congregants also brought flowering plants, which adorned the tables along with blue and white balloons.

Also displayed was a beautiful mural designed and prepared by Or Zarua's

Volunteers from Or Zarua in front of the mural created by OZ Hebrew School students.

Hebrew School students that conveyed wishes of health and friendship to the residents of the House.

A band of veteran volunteers and newcomers decorated the room, served dinner, took photographs, and interacted with families from around the world. Residents of the House this year were from China, Poland, and many locations across the United States.

This year's volunteers were Justin Erenkrantz, Brenda Goldman, Mina Greenstein, Hanan Harchol, Shanon Levine, Allan Mayer, Cecilia Mayer, Sharon Morris, Lesley Palmer, Stephanie Rosenbloom, Andrew Rubin, Becky Rubin, Sharon Seiler, Lavern Sullivan Spero, Bernie Tolpin, Lynda Wertheim, and Toby Wertheim. Special thanks to Stephanie Failla, who originally developed OZ's Tu B'Shevat Night at Ronald McDonald House.

Blintzes and Branches on Shavuot

Why is it customary to eat dairy foods on the first day of Shavuot?

Among the many explanations is that the custom derives from a verse in the Song of Songs, "Honey and milk shall be under your tongue...." This is considered a reference to the sweet and nourishing Torah, which we received on Shavuot. A practical explanation is that the Israelites at Sinai, having just received the Torah, realized that any meat they had already prepared was not kosher, so they had to eat whatever dairy foods they had on hand. A symbolic explanation is that consumption of meat represents indulgence, while consumption of dairy foods represents restraint, and the Torah is more accessible to those who exercise restraint and self-control.

Why is it customary to decorate the synagogue with foliage on Shavuot?

In addition to its association with receiving the Torah, Shavuot is an agricultural festival—the beginning of the wheat harvest (and the end of the counting of the omer) and the beginning of the fruit harvest. The Torah itself refers to the holiday in terms of the first fruits that grow in the Land of Israel. During Temple times, Shavuot was a pilgrimage festival, and bikkurim—first fruits—were brought to the Temple as offerings. Bringing the fields into the synagogue recalls these ancient customs.

Torah Scrolls Arrive Home

The Oral History Project

On Thursday, April 25, 2002 (13th of Iyar 5762), Congregation Or Zarua's Torah scrolls were brought to the new sanctuary. Shavuot was the first festival Or Zarua celebrated in our new building. The Torah scrolls had been kept at the 92nd Street Y while our current building was being constructed on East 82nd Street. That rainy Thursday, Congregants and students from the OZ Hebrew School, led by Rabbi Wechsler, carried the plastic-wrapped Torah scrolls to their new home (below, left). The celebration began in the social hall (bottom) and continued into the sanctuary (below, right), where the Torah scrolls were placed in our new Ark.

The Oral History Committee, chaired by Mimi Alperin, collects materials, such as memories and artifacts, from the early days of Congregation Or Zarua. If you have a submission for the Oral History Project, please contact Caroline Golden at caroline@carolinegolden.com or Gerry Solomon at gsolomon2@aol.com. Questions should be directed to Meredith Katz at mekatz@jtsa.edu.

Or Zarua Book Discussions

Kaddish by Leon Wieseltier, Sunday, May 19, 7:30 p.m.

Please join us for our next Or Zarua book discussion on Sunday, May 19, at 7:30 p.m. in Or Zarua's library. We will discuss Kaddish by Leon Wieseltier, the literary editor of The New Republic.

When his father died in March 1996, Leon Wieseltier began to observe the rituals of the traditional year of mourning, going daily to the synagogue to recite kaddish. In addition to his observance of traditions of mourning and his everyday responsibilities, he sought out ancient, medieval, and modern Jewish texts in pursuit of the kaddish's history and meaning. And every day he studied, translated, and wrote his own reflections on the texts that he found, punctuating his journal with stories about life in his synagogue and about his family's progress through grief.

In reflecting upon the fate of his father and of his people, he wrestles with problems of loss and faith; the meaning of tradition, freedom, and determinism; and the perplexity of rational religion. Kaddish is a work of history, philosophy, and interior autobiography, of moral force and emotional power.

If you would like more information on Or Zarua book discussions or have a book suggestion, please contact Deborah Wenger at dwenger@orzarua.org.

TALMUD CLASS

Wednesdays at 8:00 p.m. through June 19

This year we are continuing our study of Tractate Sanhedrin, which deals with the laws of capital punishment, the composition of the courts, and judicial procedures.

Anyone may join the class at any time; it is not necessary to have participated in Talmud class previously to join the class now. Talmud class will be taught by Rabbi Wechsler. When he is out of town, Rabbi Bolton will teach.

No prior knowledge of Talmud, Hebrew, or Aramaic is required.

SUMMER TALMUD CLASS

Jerusalem in the Sources: Talmud and Midrash on the Holy City
Five Wednesdays at 7:30 p.m.

This summer, Rabbi Bolton will be conducting a Talmud class entitled "Jerusalem in the Sources: Talmud and Midrash on the Holy City." The class will meet on five Wednesdays—July 24 and 31, and August 7, 14, and 21—at 7:30 p.m. in the OZ library. As in the past, anyone may join Or Zarua's Talmud class at any time; experience in Talmud study, Hebrew, or Aramaic is not necessary.

OZ Crafts Club Afghans

Supporting teens in group homes

This afghan was knitted by the Or Zarua Crafts Club. Afghans handmade by club members are given to the Jewish Board of Family and Children's Services (JBFCF), which distributes them to teens who live in group homes. The afghans are often the teens' only possession. Knitting afghans is labor-intensive, but participation is easy, since different people can be responsible for different sections. This method creates a truly custom blanket for a teen who owns little or nothing.

If you are interested in joining the Crafts Club, please leave a message with the synagogue office at 212-452-2310, extension 39. For additional information on OZ hesed activities, please see the Hesed Events and Programs column on page 12.

Or Zarua's Newest Readers of Torah

Seven additional members are prepared to leyn

For several years, under the direction of Congregant Mark Somerstein, Or Zarua has been training members to leyn. This year, Or Zarua welcomes seven new graduates to the bimah: Laurie Dien, Joanne Feierman, Aliza Kaplan, Meredith Katz, Susan Katz, Susan Kopelowitz, and Chris Miller. Short essays by Mark and some of our newest readers that describe their experiences in approaching this class appear below. As summed up by Meredith, "It was a great experience; Mark is a great teacher; and it was a wonderfully supportive group with whom to learn!" If you feel inspired to learn how to leyn, please contact Mark Somerstein by calling the synagogue office at 212-452-2310.

—CHARLIE SPIELHOLZ

Mark Somerstein

I have been reading Torah for more than 50 years, as a volunteer and as a professional. I have loved it, and it is a great pleasure and honor to be able to pass this skill on to classes at Or Zarua. People who take this class (usually 10 or 12 sessions) have varying degrees of ability in reading Hebrew, singing, learning the notes, and standing before an audience. It is, therefore, a tremendous source of gratification for me, at the end of the course, to watch each person read his or her section of the Torah. I am aware of the distance each person had to cover to reach that end result and the effort that had to be put in, and it is indeed a proud moment when the class "performs" in front of the Congregation. These are the feelings inspired in me by the current class; I leave it to them to express their own feelings about this experience.

Laurie R. Dien

Many, many moons ago, at Camp Ramah in Wisconsin, I read Torah for the first time. Unfortunately, the synagogue in St. Louis, where I grew up, didn't allow girls to read Torah then, so I never read it again. Now, many years later, I have had the privilege of facilitating the teen- and tween-led service here at Or Zarua. Both Mark Somerstein and Marc Ashley have been kind enough, when approached, to make recordings of Torah portions from which the teens could learn. Then, at Or Zarua's gala in honor of Rabbi Wechsler, Mark Somerstein asked if I would be joining his Torah reading class this year. How could I say no? He had been so kind to record all those Torah readings. I'm sure the celebration of Rabbi Wechsler and his reminders that we are a participatory Congregation helped as well. Finally, I had read a comment somewhere that questioned why we ask our children to learn to read Torah for their Bar or Bat Mitzvahs when most of them never see their parents read from the Torah. Here I was, asking all of these teens (including my daughter, Aliza) to read, but I wasn't doing it myself—not a very good role model. So I joined this wonderful class.

I dare say that if you asked any of us in the class if we could ever imagine how well we would do when we read our Torah portions on Passover, we might have chuckled a bit. But we succeeded, and we all did well—because we had a wonderful teacher in Mark. No matter what your age, I highly recommend taking Mark's class. As Rabbi Bolton noted when introducing us before our reading, it is a wonderful way to link ourselves with our tradition. And Mark is a teacher who works miracles! Thank you, Mark!

Susan Katz

A curious, new member of Or Zarua who wanted to get out of the apartment on Monday nights, I wandered into Mark's class. Being called to the Torah for an Aliyah was a new, positive experience for me, and I liked the challenge of all-Hebrew services at Or Zarua. I grew up in a Conservative synagogue, where I learned to read the Hebrew Bible and read the haftarah for my Bat Mitzvah on a Friday night. Then my formal Jewish education stopped. While my folks would have continued to send me to more Hebrew school, I didn't want to go. Prior to some of my five visits to Israel, I did try to learn modern Hebrew, but was always frustrated by the lack of vowels.

In Mark's Torah reading class, I quickly realized that I enjoyed meeting other members of OZ and learning about the trope—the musical notations that help the reader to sing Torah. In addition to learning how to read Torah, the class gave me an opportunity to improve my Hebrew skills. I not only had to be able to read Hebrew without the vowels, but would have to sing it without the trope, too. To paraphrase Big Julie in Guys and Dolls, “I would have to remember where the spots formerly was.”

My initial attempts were frustrating, and I felt I would never be able to carry or remember a tune. However, I soon realized that my classmates and I were all learning together and surmounting the same challenges. Mark had the amazing ability to give each of us the individual support we needed, and as a group, we learned from each other. Mark pointed me to the trope notes at the end of the Chumash we use in the synagogue for Torah reading; that really helped. My big breakthrough came when I realized “there’s an app for this” and I could practice verses with and without trope on my iPhone anywhere—even in the subway!

The Last Day of Passover came quickly. I was proud of our class’s accomplishments. I am considering a repeat performance or perhaps learning a new part for the second day of Shavuot.

Susan Kopelowitz

It has been a wonderful experience studying Torah with Mark Somerstein these past several weeks. While growing up in a traditional Conservative synagogue, attending Camp Ramah, and participating in USY during the 50’s, I never thought that women would be given the privilege of being counted in minyan, receiving Aliyot l’Torah, as well as chanting from the Torah. My Bat Mitzvah was on Shabbat morning, and I chanted a haftarah; however, the blessing before and after the reading, as well as the Aliyah, were done by the Bar Mitzvah boy who shared my day. Who would have thought that almost 60 years later, I would have been taught to chant from the Torah?

I found out quite readily that one does not have to have musical talent to learn to read from the Torah; I certainly don’t. Through the “exercises” that Mark has his students do, repeating the trope, and making the newcomer feel comfortable, the whole class “got it.” Listening to each other helped in the learning process, as did the communal support from fellow students. The enthusiasm was contagious.

I would encourage anyone who has even a tiny desire to learn to read Torah to take this class. You will learn. I feel very privileged to be here at Or Zarua, where everyone is welcome to participate. Although I did not grow up with full synagogue participation, I am grateful that my family gave me the background, tradition, and education that has served as my foundation. Never say never.

Holocaust and Heroism Remembrance Day

OZ youth led the Yom HaShoah service

With music and candle lighting, Or Zarua’s youth and their families led a service for Yom HaShoah v’HaG’vurah—Holocaust and Heroism Remembrance Day—after sunset on Sunday, April 7. This service not only remembered the victims of the Holocaust, but also recalled people, both Jews and non-Jews, who rose up against those who were destroying every aspect of European Jewry. The heroes of the Holocaust hid and protected Jewish people from arrest, organized and participated in uprisings in the concentration camps, fought against our foes at every opportunity, and kept the spirituality and faith of Judaism alive despite the many obstacles established by our determined adversaries.

OROT FOR THE HIGH HOLY DAYS

Call for articles, poems and reflections

Please submit reflective, creative, or scholarly pieces that would be appropriate for High Holy publication of Orot. Although the range of topics is broad, I would like to invite Congregants to reflect on these questions:

1. What do we learn from the Akeidah?
2. Why are there both public and private aspects of religious expression? What should be kept private? What should be made public?
3. Is there a particular part of the High Holy Day liturgy or celebration that speaks the most to you?

Please write to me at rabbibolton@orzarua.org if you would like an editorial development meeting, so that we can create a rich collection of material for and with one another for this upcoming high holiday season.
